STRATEGIC SOLUTIONS:

MARITIME TRANSIT ZONES & PORT MONITORING SERVICES

Today, national-security interests can no longer be defined solely in terms of direct military threats to a country and its allies. The millions of miles of open sea and maritime transit zones in high threat regions are perhaps, a country's greatest challenge. Many ports, lack a vessel-tracking system to monitor ships coming in and out of the area.

Strategic Security Corp. (SSC) is the lead private risk management agency for maritime piracy interdiction and coordinates closely with military, local, state and federal Government officials within the region to prevent, deter and disrupt terrorist attacks and response to and recovery from those that do occur. Working under the necessarily broader current definition of national security, SSC is a key player in combating the risk from terrorism to commercial shipping and fishing vessels, ships providing humanitarian aid, cruise lines and private vessels at foreign and domestic ports and in maritime transit zones, including the Gulf of Aden and the Horn of Africa.

SSC accomplishes this goal by modeling its maritime services after current tactics used by the United States Coast Guard and Navy that have proven to be effective in combating drug smugglers and seaborne pirates. SSC's services include:

- Intercept boats staffed with security teams to provide escort security to vessels traveling in high threat maritime transit zones.
- Highly skilled snipers equipped with high power scopes and rifles to shot out the pirate's boat's engine. Nonlethal countermeasures to help them stop suspects without killing: nets made of Kevlar fabric that snarl boat propellers, rubber pellets, "stingball" grenades that flash and bang but release no shrapnel.
- Tactical surveillance equipment: night vision goggles to practice homing in on their "target" with infrared aids and video cameras that provide crucial evidence in leading to guilty pleas or convictions of pirates.
- Hostage negotiation. Our analysts evaluate the information presented throughout the crisis and assist the client in making sound decisions under difficult circumstances. We will facilitate and initiate crisis management in the event an employee or family member is the subject of a kidnap for ransom. Our Hostage Negotiation Team which is comprised of former FBI lead negotiators is capable of handling the entire negotiation and, if necessary, provides an operational and tactical team for emergency rescue, evacuation and repatriation.
- Establishing mechanisms in which information can be monitored, assessed and acted upon within the maritime transit zones and port community and conducting a threat assessment based on these threats.
- We also, prepare a Ships Security Plan that meets the requirements of the ISPS Code, conduct compliance verifications on existing Ship Security Plans, and support programs and technologies that enhance cargo and cruise passenger screening without restricting trade flow and passenger processing.

Our security personnel are not mercenaries or low income, untrained guards. Rather they are former law enforcement and military professionals that can assist in enhancing the quality of life in a region by working in partnership with the community and in accordance with constitutional rights to enforce the laws, preserve the peace, reduce fear, and provide for a safe environment. They have distinguished public service careers that complement their extensive knowledge of corporate security and liability issues as well as possessing a well honed set of crisis management skills that makes them more than just a cost center on the balance sheet.

Strategic Security Corp. believes that strong, well-protected maritime transit zones can only enhance the reputation of a country and their port as a safe, commercially viable and dependable place to do business. We believe that by strengthening points of entry and transit zones, the security of the country will be improved, and international trade will be protected and facilitated.
